WORST STORM TO HIT W.CAPE IN THIRTY YEARS WREAKS HAVOC IN CAPE TOWN

A major winter storm hit the Western Cape on Tuesday, June 6, 2017 and intensified in the early hours of Wednesday morning. It brought powerful winds, huge waves and coastal flooding, frequent lightning, heavy rain and snow at higher elevations. Gale force winds and heavy rain associated with the worst storm to hit the region in thirty years brought Cape Town and neighbouring cities to a standstill on Wednesday morning. Wind gusts in excess of 80 km/h wrought destruction throughout the region, leaving thousands of people homeless.

According to the City of Cape Town Disaster Management, around 700 structures in the city were affected by flooding. The storm left at least eight people dead and many injured. The Evergreen Bergvliet Village was affected when a huge Norfolk Pine tree was blown over on Firgrove Road and toppled onto Units 44 and 45.

Our maintenance department, together with the excellent contractors managed to repair the damage to the boundary wall and electric fence within a few days. They rebuilt the wall, replaced the roof tiles and ceilings to avoid further damage, with ongoing rain still falling over the region. It was a great team effort to get the damage repaired and our residents secured and safe by the weekend.

His Last Sonnet

Bright star, would I were steadfast as thou art! -
Not in lone splendour hung aloft the night,
And watching, with eternal lids apart,
Like Nature's patient sleepless Eremite,
The moving waters at their priestlike task
Of pure ablution round earth's human shores,
Or gazing on the new soft fallen mask
Of snow upon the mountains and the moors -
No -yet still steadfast, still unchangeable,
Pillowed upon my fair love's ripening breast,
To feel for ever its soft fall and swell,
Awake for ever in a sweet unrest,
Still, still to hear her tender-taken breath,
And so live ever -or else swoon to death.

John Keats
