Evergreen Broadacres January 2024

Editor: Edna Grenfell - email: ednagrenfell@gmail.com

From
The Village Manager
Wilma Swart

The new year has certainly started off with a bang of thunder, lightning and lots of rain.

The Village gardens are loving it and are gorgeously lush and ever GREEN. It is hard to believe that we already have had the piper and kilts and are now preparing for the Valentine's dinner and music evening.

We are all working hard on the February 2024 financial year-end budget. We continue to change the water treatment plant to eliminate the Johannesburg water outages. The past month's rain has caused many potholes around Fourways. Be mindful of this when driving.

Residents who want to separate their recyclable and non-recyclable waste can place them into Pikitup recycle bags. The marked bags are left by Pikitup when they collect our recycling waste on a Monday or Tuesday at the waste area. You are welcome to take one of these bags where you can place your weekly tins, bottles and paper. You can then put this bag out with your dustbin on a Monday, and the staff will collect these bags and keep them separate for Pikitup to collect and take away to be sorted. This only applies to residents living in houses. Apartment residents have different coloured bins in their basements where they can place their recycling. Residents who prefer to bring their recycling down to the waste area and place it in the relevant bins are welcome to continue doing so Please refrain from using the recycling bags for your general waste as this will mean that your general waste will end up between the recyclable waste.

I wish you all a February filled with love, laughter, and joy.

Till next month.

Village Rainfall

by Cecil Fann

Rainfall in January was a noticeable improvement over the past few years, and exceeding the long term average.

Hopefully the situation will continue in February. We are told that we can expect a dry winter.

Please note that monthly totals reported are measured up to the 25th of each month.

Dam levels across the country show a slight decrease from 94% this time last year to 92% now. As usual, the current situation varies widely, from 97% for Mpumulanga to 76% for the Western Cape.

Our own Vaal Dam stands at 71.3% full, an increase of 4.3% in the month. This data is at 23 January 2024.

Seven cars that hijackers are targeting

According to Fidelity SecureDrive's latest data, the seven most high-risk models, in no specific order, are

- Toyota Fortuner (GD6 and D4D)
- Toyota Hilux (GD6 and D4D)
- Toyota Corolla Cross
- Toyota RAV 4
- VW Polo (especially hatchbacks)
- Nissan NP200
- Ford Ranger (both double and single cab)

Wahl Bartmann, CEO of Fidelity Services Group, reminded South Africans that most hijackers target victims at, or close to, their residences and places of work.

He also confirmed that approximately 30% of all stolen and hijacked vehicles last year were taken across the border into neighbouring countries.

In addition to these seven models, Bartmann noted hijackers are increasingly targeting utility vehicles and trucks for the cargo - particularly the Hyundai H100s.

Coco and Suki.

They are indoor cats, and you won't see them wandering around

After not eating for five days – which we can only imagine had to be nerve-racking, they settled down.

They mostly sleep during the day but can be seen having a

Book Reviews

The Weight of Water
Anita Shreve

submitted by Libby

Rory Clements is a superb historical novelist who weaves his plots around true historical mysteries and gives intriguing insights into their probable causes. In this book, set in Elizabethan times, the story involves the unexplained death of Christopher Marlowe and the influx of Dutch immigrants fleeing religious persecution.

His main character, John Shakespeare, working for Robert Cecil, is tasked with discovering how gunpowder is being stolen and used to blow up and insight violence against the Dutch immigrants.

Clements paints a vivid picture of England at that time - an England of glory but also of squalor, crime, passion, and rage.

The story is fast-moving and engaging.

During the night in March 1873 two women Norwegian immigrants, were murdered on a small bleak island of Smuttynose off the rich fishing coast of New Hampshire. A third woman survived hiding in a sea cave until dawn.

Anita Shreve weaves her novel around these historical facts, even the court room testimonies are taken from the original records. Although the matter of who killed the two women was settled by the court, the mystery surrounding their deaths continued to be debated for more than a century.

In her novel set more than a century later, Jean a photojournalist, is sent on an assignment to compile a photo-essay about the legendary crime. During her investigations she unearths letters written by Maren, the sole survivor of the murder spree.

In this novel Anita Shreve slowly builds up the tension, deftly juxtaposing a strained modern marriage and the century-old murder. This book was adapted for a film of the same name which was released in 2000.

Rabbie Burns Night

The Village celebrated Burn's Night with all the traditional trappings such as piper, kilts, tam o' shanter caps, whisky and Scotland's national dish, HAGGIS! Charles was at his best regaling numerous tales of Rabbie's life, including his notorious philandering.

Burns Night is celebrated every year on 25 January in honour of Scotland's national poet, Robert Burns.

The Ayrshire poet and lyricist died in 1796 at 37, but he is still regarded as the most prominent poet to have written in the Scots dialect.

His best-known poems include To a Mouse, Address to a Haggis, Tam O'Shanter, A Red, Red Rose, and The Selkirk Grace.

Alongside his literary contributions, Burns gained fame for his numerous love affairs and radical political leanings, expressing sympathy for the French and American revolutions.

WHAT IS THE MULTI- PARTY CHARTER FOR SOUTH AFRICA?

On 17 July 2023, seven parties currently serving in the National Assembly signed a pre-election agreement called the Multi-Party Charter for South Africa. Together, these parties currently hold 108 of the 400 seats. This number was recently increased to 112 seats, with additional parties joining by December 2023. The list of signatory parties now comprises the following:

ActionSA, African Christian Democratic Party (ACDP), Democratic Alliance (DA), Ekhetu Party, Freedom Front Plus (FF Plus), Inkatha Freedom Party (IFP), Independent South African National Civic Organisation (ISANCO), Spectrum National Party and United Christian Democratic Party (UCDP) United Independent Movement (UIM). This list may increase further before the election.

The multi-party charter states that the signatory parties will contest elections as individual parties working together to win a collective majority in the 2024 elections. The challenges facing South Africans cannot be resolved from the opposition benches. The charter urges South Africans to unite, knowing we are "Better Together."

The charter records the following priority issues for a new government to address

- Growing the economy and creating jobs;
- Ending load shedding and achieving energy security;
- Achieving law and order that combats crime, corruption and drugs;
- Ensuring quality education that delivers opportunities for all;
- Delivering essential services to all through high-quality infrastructure;
- Building a professional public service that delivers to all and ending cadre deployment;
- Ensuring quality healthcare for all within a caring healthcare system;
- Building a social relief framework for South African households living in poverty.

All signatory parties have undertaken to govern in accordance with a shared set of governing principles.

The parties are clear that they will not entertain any working arrangements or co-governing agreements with the ANC, EFF or any rival formations, and they will not vote for any office bearers of the ANC and the EFF at any inaugural meetings of the national or provincial government structures.

The multi-party charter is a pre-election agreement on which a multi-party coalition agreement will be negotiated after the election. Coalitions will be established at the national and provincial levels, with the number of votes cast for the multi-party charter members amounting to at least 50% + 1 of the votes cast. This approach means that every vote counts.

Current polling data shows a decline in ANC support and an increase in support for an alternative government.

In 1994, a high voter turnout resulted in a massive change in our country and set it on a path of increased prosperity for all South Africans. Unfortunately, the current ruling party has deviated from a path that should have consolidated and built on the promise of 1994. As citizens, we need to take heart and regain that promise by voting for the multi-party charter's alternative.

We realise that this article may not have answered all your questions, but we are willing to source answers for any questions you may have on this topic. These will be published in the Newsletters leading up to the election date.

LAST CHANCE!

Dennis has achieved almost 100% registration of eligible residents to vote in the Village.

Voter registration will close on 4 February 2024, so please encourage your family and friends to register by then. Only voters registered by that time will be added to the Voter's Roll, which will be used for the 2024 elections.
