CAPE TOWN'S DOCKLAND BY BRIAN INGPEN

Brian Ingpen has roamed Cape Town's Dockland for nearly seven decades, boarding ships as a youngster, watching cargo work in the pre-container era, fascinated by the variety of ships that passed this way, riding on those old steam tugs, and meeting people from across the world.

He has written ten maritime-related books - including Cape Town's Dockland published last year.

He retired recently after 46 years in education, including 23 years' service at Lawhill Maritime Centre in Simon's Town for which he received the Presidential Award - Order of Baobab (Silver) - in 2021.
